

Project Update: February 2012

Lots of activities in our project. The series of conferences we gave during the second semester of 2011 greatly contributed to a nice boost of reforestation initiatives. During the rainy season volunteer groups were being organised all over the Córdoba mountains – to plant native trees and sometimes also to cut especially invasive exotics. A documental called “Reforestation” was filmed by a local producer. This documental captured the nice spirit and collaboration work of three of these volunteer groups, including ours, and was broadcast in several channels all over Argentina. Our partner Mr. Luis Volkmann coordinated the production of the documental “The culture of water conservation” funded entirely by RSG, we are very proud of this production which was inaugurated near his small home town with an audience of over 500 spectators, no more people fitted in the theatre. And a lot more to come...
