

Project Update: August 2012

In the first pictures we can see that the manager did not succeed in controlling the farmers in mowing the grass at the appropriate time. The grass was mowed in the nesting period and after the authorities intervened the actions stopped but the grass was not mowed at the right time at all and was left to wither.

In the last picture we can see a dead juvenile badger which was attacked by a shepherd's dog. Unfortunately, there are a lot of predators and their numbers are growing due to poorly coordinated hunting regulations. During every fieldwork trip we can see a few foxes and even badgers in daytime.
