Project Update: August 2014

As a part of my second Rufford grant project, we have been producing different awareness raising materials to mitigate human-elephant conflict. Hoarding boards are still under process of finalisation after we visited the human-elephant conflict priority zone to identify appropriate site to place the hoarding boards. Posters are nearly final which is attached here for your reference (though they are in Nepali language, I hope you will like it). After printing all these awareness materials, we (me and my team) will visit the area again and place as well as share all those IEC materials as per our early plan.
