Project Update: April 2008

The project is going great and we are already processing some of the data obtained. This might be presented to the International Whaling Commission to meet next June in Santiago de Chile. We have been invited to present some information on the project. So this would be a wonderful opportunity to share some of this work. We will send you a copy of this report as soon are completed.

A poster has been distributed within fishermen attending to our talks, to be used in their boats, so it becomes easier to identify the species they observe during these trips at sea.
