

Project Update: October 2013

Field work ended on the first week of October 2013 due to our inability to gather additional funds. Nonetheless, it was an incredibly productive season and a great volume of behavioural, positional and ecological information was gathered. Also, we maintained a very positive relationship with local communities and that may even promote the development of following projects that promote economic sustainability and facilitate our role as researchers and conservationists.

