

Project Update: March 2014

I have finished most of the programmes and activities and initiated the demo plot. The vegetable species is growing and for fodder and fruits I have consulted to the District forest office and district Agriculture office and species will be ready within some weeks for plantation. After March 2014 they can be planted as raining season starts here in Panchase. The work is in success and going with good participation of community people and they are very interested and active in agroforestry system and adapting it. I have completed the school programme and excursion and field visit to the small farmers. I have attached some of the photos of the activities.

Field visit photos

Field visit was taken in Surya Adhakari farm where he has established a good example of agroforestry system (coffee and fodder species) and earned more than Rs 80,000 per year from it.
