

Project Update: July 2009

In February 2009 we visited the local communities in Golan Pristin to present information about the values of nature of the Dniepr Delta. This was in conjunction with the World Wetlands day activities in Ukraine. During these meetings, posters and flyers were distributed about red list species and colonial water birds and lectures were given. The ideas about conservation were discussed with the local authorities. In June 2009, the area was visited again for an update of information of bird colonies. Some new heronries and cormorant colonies were discovered. This can be used to emphasize the important locations for birds in the area.
