

Project Update: June 2017

From February 1st-2nd 2017 we conducted environmental education workshops in three schools in the La Mancha region, Veracruz, Mexico. In the workshops, we show what are, types of ecological interactions and their importance in the ecosystem to approximately 250 students from primary and secondary level. The workshop's activities included words puzzle, crossword puzzles, photo puzzles, mask making, and the dynamic "Ecological Interactions Olympiad". Additionally, we held a lecture about ecological interactions to approximately 100 biology and agronomy students from a regional university.
