Khomani San Tracking School

A group of four Khomani San trackers are wishing to use their ancestral tracking skills to start their own tracking school. To assist them, we organised a tracking mentorship session with CyberTracker Master Tracker Adriaan Louw and Tracker Specialist Andrew Kearney over 5 days in Kgalagadi Transfrontier Park, South Africa. The aim was for the Khomani San trackers to learn from the two mentors and vice-versa, while getting used to the CyberTracker Tracking Standards. Additionally, we held several discussions to better understand what the Khomani San would like to achieve and how they can use !Ae!Hai Kalahari Heritage Park - which is 57,903 ha of land within the park that was conditionally allocated to the Khomani San and Mier communities.
