

Project Update: June 2011

The socio-economic assessment, attitude survey of local community and school children awareness campaign were completed. Large carnivore movement routes were mapped and potential human-large carnivore conflict sources were identified and evaluated. Final data compilation and correlation with official natural resources management plans, completion of a detailed report and dissemination of results are ongoing.

Left: Discussion with local people, explaining the role of large carnivores, conflict mitigation methods and legal damage compensation schemes. Right: School children awareness campaign – distribution of extra-large posters and informative brochures about large carnivores, their ecological role and interaction with humans.
